UNCERTAINTY ABOUT THE 2026 CoC COMPETITION

- The legal status of the NOFO is still pending.
- The Plaintiff (NAEH) has filed with the court a "request for relief" including:
 - HUD to vacate the Challenged Provisions that NAEH previously submitted in their case. A brief generalization of these are: 1. subverting proven models such as

2026 CoC Competition Updates

Housing First; 2. mandatory compliance with unrelated Executive Orders such as limiting protections for transgendered and non-binary people, involving recipients in immigration enforcement, eradicating DEI efforts, etc; and 3. Unauthorized set-asides (setting aside available funds to new projects and shifting emphasis away from PH to TH and supportive services without following proper procedures).

- HUD to develop a plan for issuing the Tier 1 awards without applying the Challenged Provisions. HUD is legally required to announce the awards by December 1, 2026.
- HUD to not award Tier 2 projects until a new process without set-asides is launched for Tier 2 projects
- HUD develop a plan for launching a new competition for Tier 2 projects

Keep in mind these are pending legal requests - not mandates at this time! To learn more about this most recent legal proceeding visit:

<https://www.courtlistener.com/docket/73568402/44/national-alliance-to-end-homelessness-v-united-states-department-of/>

HUD currently has an open public comment period regarding the set-aside funds for new projects with emphasis on transitional housing and supportive services. Of the $4,040,000,000 available in the Competition, 32% is set aside for new TH and Supportive Services Only projects. 11% was set aside for Permanent Housing projects. For context, our 2025 PH funding equaled 79% of our total funding.

The public comment period is a chance for stakeholders to express whether they support the set aside or not. You can read more about HUD's public comment period here:

<https://www.regulations.gov/document/HUD-2026-1453-0001> At this site, you will also find the link for making a public comment. Currently there are 616 comments. The deadline for making a comment is October 13, 2026 by 11:59 EDT.
